

VIEW AND PRACTICE OF BUDDHISM'S THREE YANAS WITH BART MENDEL

A non-residential teaching retreat with Bart Mendel
MARCH 30-31, 2019 | SAN LUIS OBISPO, CA

Registration is required to reserve a spot. The retreat fee covers both days, including lunch, but does not include payment to the teacher who provides the teachings on a donation basis. Details of teacher donations will be provided at the retreat. Please be generous!

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

*This teaching, appropriate for students of all levels, is an excellent introduction to the breadth of the various Buddhist traditions. Our sponsors underwrite fees to make the teachings available to all who wish to attend, regardless of ability to pay.

The Buddha was acutely aware of the varying capacities, inclinations, and aspirations of his followers, and gave them personal teachings to suit their various needs. These later became grouped into the Theravada, Mahayana, and Vajrayana traditions – the three yanayas of Buddhism, each with its own threefold logic of ground, path and fruition. While different in application, all the Buddha's teachings have the same goal – overcoming ego and the ensuing suffering it causes.

Dharma Teacher Bart Mendel returns to Bodhi Path-SLO with this quintessential teaching that explains the essential points of each yana from the perspective of both practice and study. While this is an intermediate-level teaching, it will also serve as an excellent introduction for those curious about Buddhism in general or the Tibetan tradition.

SCHEDULE

Saturday and Sunday, March 30-31. Sessions will be from 9 AM to 12 PM and 2 PM to 5 PM each day. Tea, snacks and lunch will be provided.
